ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY LIVES TAKEN

BY A DEVASTATING STORM MONDAY IN THE SOUTHWEST

One Thousand Injured In Path of Storm Leading From Texas To Illinois—Four Million Dollars In Property Loss Is Estimated—Forty Dead, One Hundred Injured At Popular Bluff, Mo.—Train Blown From Tracks At Hoxie, Arkansas.

Upward of 100 persons were killed, 1,000 injured and property damage of more than $4,000,000 was done by a tornado originating in Texas, which moved northward thru Kansas, Missouri and Arkansas, where it became a series of tornadoes, and then lost much of its force as it passed over Illinois and into Indiana in the form of a violent wind and rain storm Monday.

The tornado struck with greatest destructive power at Popular Bluff, Missouri, where more than a score were reported to be dead and 250 injured by the storm, which wrecked part of the city, after which it added to the destruction.

The cyclonic winds twice struck Missouri Monday, the first tornado, smiting before the dawn, took 12 lives and the second, which centered at Popular Bluff, added 20 to 30 more to the casualties.

In Arkansas, upward of 30 lives were lost when a tornado struck a score or more towns and villages.

Texas reported a death list of 32 in four towns.

The tornado also reached into Illinois and Kentucky, at least one person being killed in Illinois. In Kentucky a number were injured.

Added to the above terrific toll were the 10 persons killed by a tornado which tore a path thru Kansas Saturday night.

Following is a summary of the tornado's toll of Monday.

Missouri—Popular Bluff more than a score killed, business section of town virtually destroyed; Eldon and Olean, 6 killed; Auxvasse, New Bloomfield and Carrington, in Calloway county, 5 dead; St. Louis, one killed.

Texas—Nevada, 16 dead; Garland, 10; Wolfe, 4, and Kellogg, 2.

Arkansas—Strong where loss of life is unchecked, but heavy; Egypt, 7 dead; Walnut Ridge, 4; Hoxie, 7 killed; Carlisle, 1 dead; Norphet, several dead; Pierce's Mill, 3 dead; Paul's Switch, 2 dead; Toledo, 1 dead.

MRS. HICKLE DEAD.

Mrs. Caroline Rauck Hickle, widow of Jacob Hickle, passed away at her home, 812 East Main street, Chillicothe, Sunday evening at 9:45, following an illness due to complications.

Mrs. Hickle was born at Hallsville on November 17, 1847, the daughter of John and Elizabeth Hickle and was married in April, 1868, to Jacob Hickle, who died in 1912. She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. A. Reichelderfer, Mrs. J. M. Stauffer and Miss Ada Hickle at home and one sister, Mrs. Martha Reedy of Essex Ontario, Canada.

She was a member of the Hallsville U. B. church and was a faithful attendant as long as her health permitted. Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. H. O. Thompson and Rev. Shaw officiating. Burial in the Dresbach cemetery at Hallsville.

REAL ESTATE DEAL

Thru the Circle Realty Co., the Thornton property formerly owned by W. H. Dotter, on North Washington street, was sold to Ira B. Weiler and wife.

Other towns struck by the tornado, such as England, had been unable to report their loss of late Monday night.

Illinois—1 dead. Upward of 30 persons were known to be dead and an undetermined number injured as a result of a tornado which cut a path thru more than a dozen towns and communities in northeastern Arkansas Monday afternoon.

Unverified reports placed the dead at a much larger figure and the toll mounted as news trickled thru broken lines of communication.

With seven dead, the village of Egypt was a heavy sufferer from the storm, which crossed over into Missouri after lashing a path of destruction thru Arkansas.

Other towns with varying reports of loss of life or property damage were; Hoxie, Paul's Switch, Hunter, Carlisle, Imboden, Lonoke, Winesburg, England and Black Rock. No casualties, however, were reported from Black Rock.

Communication with the whole district was meager.

GOV. DONAHEY MAKES DEMAND ON ASSEMBLY

Demands That Senator Chappelle's Election Measure Be Passed.

Unless the general assembly passes the Chappelle election recodification bill, or its equivalent, before adjournment, Governor Vic Donahey will call that body back in an extraordinary session to complete this task.

The declaration was made by the chief executive Monday in an urgent message to the house of representatives pleading for the passage of the new election bill with its permanent registration feature. This bill has already passed the senate but has never been reported out of the elections committee in the house.

"If the party platforms mean anything," he said, "if the oath to observe the party pledges which every member of the General assembly took when he became a candidate, means anything; if the demand for economy and a reduction in the needless cost of government is to be met, then one of the ways by which the pledges and responsibilities can be fulfilled is to enact Amended Substitute Senate bill No. 20 the Chappelle bill) or its equivalent.

The governor also appealed for the passage of the Lefever bill allowing the appointment of attorney examiners by the state public utilities commission.

MURDERERS OF ALBERT SNYDER FOUND GUILTY

Ruth Brown Snyder and
Henry Judd Gray To Be
Electrocuted.

Mrs. Ruth Brown Snyder and Henry Judd Gray are to pay with their lives for the crime that snatched them from obscurity and made them internationally known.

Deliberating less than two hours, a jury Monday convicted them of the murder of Mrs. Snyder's husband, Albert Snyder, magazine art editor. Death sentence is mandatory for first degree murder, but the formality of sentence was postponed until next Monday morning.

Cheers greeted the verdict when it was flashed to the crowd outside Long Island city's supreme court. In side the court the verdict was received in silence. Neither defendant exhibited any great emotion, and appeared to be either too dazed to comprehend its portent, or to be only hearing what they had expected.

When, after the usual formalities, the foreman uttered his "both guilty of murder in the first degree," Mrs. Snyder's blonde head, professionally dressed for the occasion by a hairdresser, jerked perceptibly. Her eyes roved like those of one fainting, then she stiffened, and thus, erect and proud, she sat while the jury was polled.

But Gray, whose plea of dominance by the superior mind of Mrs. Snyder had led many to believe him to be less the stoic, made no more fuss about the matter than she.

Counsel for both deferred announcement of their intentions as regards appeals. Justice Townsend Scudder thanked the jurors and they left their seats, to be swept along in the stream of humanity outside. There they were greeted by cheers and flash-lights, as photographers pressed around them.

The court room was jammed long before the verdict was announced. The case was given to the jury at 5:29 o'clock Monday afternoon.

The insurance carried by Gray and the murdered man, Albert Snyder has caused a good deal of discussion. Gray was insured for $30,000. His victim carried a life policy of $96,000 made payable to his wife. Gray's policy was also made payable to his wife in the event of his death. If Gray is executed his wife will get the insurance. If his paramour, Mrs. Ruth Snyder, widow of Albert Snyder goes to the chair, her daughter, Lorraine, a nine year child will be the beneficiary.

NEW GAS RATE
PLAN BY MYERS

Elyria, May 9.—(UP.)—Solicitor D. W. Myers, one of the leaders in the protest of Ohio cities against a proposed increase in rates by the Logan Gas company, announced today he would confer with attorneys of other cities in the fight and recommend a new basis for settlement.

Myers' proposal includes: That the rate for gas be fixed at a flat rate of 55 cents per thousand feet for two years.

That the Logan company be allowed to retain all of the money collected thus far.

That the various city councils involved might now agree that they would enter a contract on the basis of 60 cents per thousand for the second two years.

BARTON WALTERS

Accidentally Struck Man Walking On Scioto Trail.

About midnight Sunday, Attorney Barton Walters returning to this city from Columbus, accidentally struck a man named Lee Waldon, of Columbus, walking on the west side of the Scioto Trail about a half mile north of South Bloomfield and knocked him into the ditch, cutting a gash on Waldon's forehead and bruising him about the body. Mr. Walters called Dr. Gardner from Ashville who rendered first aid to the injured man and removed him to his home in Columbus.

The accident was the result of the bright lights of an approaching car which prevented Mr. Walters from seeing Mr. Waldon, in time to stop his car, the fender of which struck Mr. Waldon.

Tailored Coat Is Given Preference

Lines of Spring Models Are Softened by Treatment of Materials.

The spring coats and hats have arrived and the models define very clearly the new styles. The immediate impression, says a fashion correspondent in the New York Times, is that of a subtle blending of simplicity and grace, of the severe and the ornamental. The fashionable coat for spring is cut on strictly tailored lines, and then is softened with a gentle elaborating handling of the fabric. This is one manner of working out the design, and constitutes the full extent to which the feminized model departs from the mannish tailor-made which is the conventional standard of smartness in street dress, sports clothes and, especially, in coats. The architecture of the spring coat is in the main one of straight lines, and the uncurved silhouette is shown to be still the mode, though the detail may suggest variation and add interest to a clever creation, however naive it may appear to be.

At first glance the spring models seem not to differ greatly from the styles of last autumn, but models from the best designers disclose points of distinction and much charm. There is an air of refinement about the new coats, contrasting to the bold and often bizarre modes of a year ago, plainly and most attractively illustrated in the first offerings from prominent Parisian couturiers.

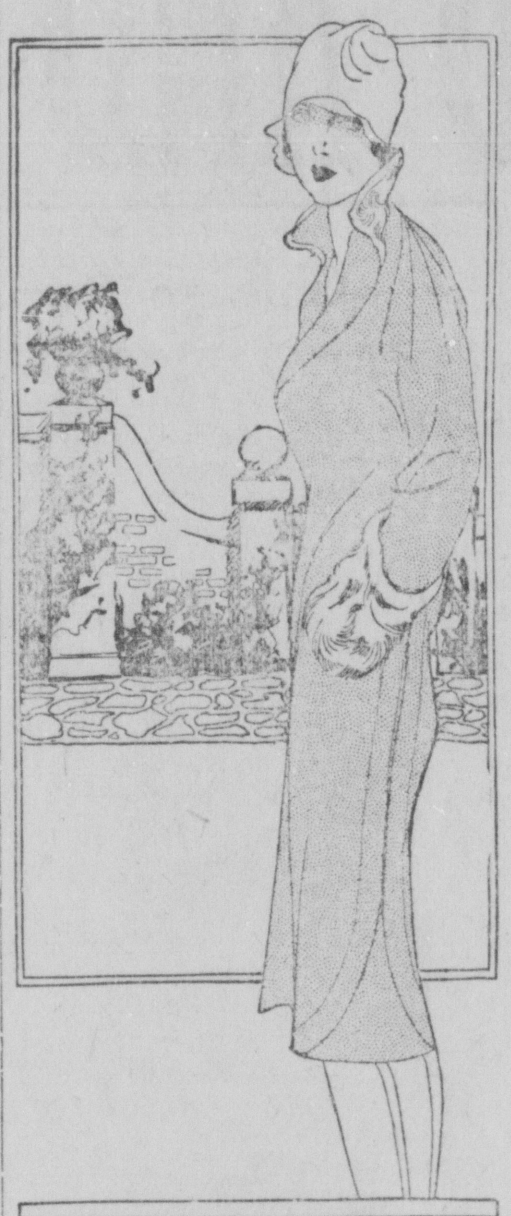

In this group of French origin is a novelty from Molyneux, a reversible coat that will answer most happily the requirements of many occasions. Molyneux is the author of this model, which is made of gray and blue kashaduvetyne, one side being of one color and the lining of the other. A detail in trimming is added in three strapbands of the cloth about the bottom, black stitched on the gray side and is reverse order. The neck is finished with a very simple collar of gray clipped caracul, the only touch of fur on the garment.

Tucks Instead of Seams.

Louise Boulanger also uses kashaduvetyne in her model, which is done in two shades of brown, havanna and walnut. This design is strikingly original. In place of the regulation seams, the coat is fitted with diagonal tucks radiating from the high round line of the neck, yoke-depth over the front, back and shoulders. This is finished with a narrow strap collar and cravat with ends that tie, and has no fur. The coat itself is made of the higher shade of brown lined with the dark, and a cut-out border in geometric pattern of faille is applied about the bottom of the coat and in narrow bands at the wrists.

One more design of distinction comes from the Paris house of Paquin, a departure from the stereotyped garment illustrating an uncommon variation of line. This, too, is a straight cut coat, made of a velvety

Those of simpler design are without any particular diversity and wholly untrimmed with anything other than a light fur, usually just on the collar, some models having a band along the edges of the front. The new and more important styles are illustrating the varied lines, apparently quite simple but in reality complicated and very skillfully done. These curves and angles are designed to outline the figure in slim silhouette, in most flattering manner, emphasized with stitching which forms a tuck. The very latest treatment of the seam has the appearance of tucks with edges facing like a small inverted plait known as the slot seam. This is particularly effective in the plain fabrics—covert, reps, broadcloth and kasha in the smooth surface finish; manitoba, a coating designed for general town wear, and gleamcord, a plain, practical lustrous cloth with rayon threads, a perfect reversible.

Coat of Kasha Duvetyne, Deep Oval Panels, New Sleeve and Cuff.

One coat made in America promises to have a decided vogue among the younger set. It is made of kasha in two shades of tan, reversible and shows a cleverly constructed collar which may be worn on either side. This is formed of a strip of American caracul, clipped very close, the shade of the darker tone of the cloth. Another of these simple, straight-line coats is made of beige kasha and is lined with the same material of the exact shade, with a small collar and rather wide cuffs of ombre lapin that tones from cream to brown. This type of coat, which is both becoming and youthful, has caught the fancy of smartly dressed women and is being done in all the new colors, lined with the same shade or with another harmonious color, sometimes reversible according to the latest mode, and by some designers lined or faced with fancy silk.

Next in popularity, perhaps, is the coat of one of the new figured stuffs, self-toned or two-toned, and, in a few models, in mixtures or sharply marked blocks or checks. A lovely coat of the more elaborate type is made of gray homespun, soft in weave but rather loosely woven.

Adhere to Simplicity.

Spring coats of American design and manufacture adhere in the main to the season's standard of simplicity; but both originality and sense of form are illustrated in the great number of models gradually being brought out. To describe briefly one coat that may be worn with a tailored one-piece frock, a soft gown or made part of an ensemble is of rep bloom. In manzanita, one of the new and lovely shades of brown. In this model tuckling, which has been given emphasis by all of the designers, both French and American, is introduced in clusters. On the back of the coat a small group of tucks extends from each shoulder straight to the hem. At the front, tucks in these clusters of three or five form two deep points, the upper one of which begins at the hip.

In sports coats designed for practical athletic activities there are many chic styles—the chevrons, homespuns, checks and mixtures. A coat that will be seen often with sports frocks and as part of a sports ensemble is a short model showing ten or twelve inches of the usual plaited skirt. One of these is made of navy minabella, is severely plain in the back and has a front varied with seam lines that begin at the shoulder and form geometric patterns in the shape of a large pocket at each side. The front of the skirt is laid in narrow box plaits, the back width being perfectly plain. The sleeves are simply tailored and the neck of the coat has a narrow, deep revers collar, softened by the cravat scarf that attaches to the blouse underneath and is tied at one side of the neck with long ends.

Among the engaging styles for late spring and early summer is a coat that has had great success at the Southern resorts. It is made of white diagonal cheviot woven in block figure, is conventionally tailored with just a touch of mosaic inset in a cross section of the material on each large side pocket.

SMOOTHING THE
PATHS OF TRADE

The rapidity with which American industries and trades are settling their houses in order in conformity with the basic idea of self-government in business is reflected in reports received by the Trade Relations Committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

A number of trades have within the past six months set up the machinery for ironing out trade practices by organizing joint committees representing manufacturing, wholesaling and retailing. Recently a committee of this kind was organized by the Automotive Equipment Association. Similar joint committees are contemplated by the following industries: Confectionery, drugs, fruits and vegetables, furniture, glass, millinery and stationery.

It is recognized that once the individual trades have established definite codes of business practice for themselves the next step will be the self-regulation of inter-industrial relations. Progress so far made indicates that business disputes can be settled much more efficaciously and promptly directly than by way of the courts and that business can do the job of self-government much better than an external commission or tribunal.

BIG DEPOSITS

Of Fullers Earth is Discovered In Illinois.

Chicago, Ill., May 9.—Important deposits of fullers earth have been discovered and opened up in southern Illinois by the Sinclair Refining Co., according to a report of the Cairo, Ill., Chamber of Commerce. Deposits of fullers earth are now being worked in Florida, Georgia, Texas, California, South Dakota and New York and in lesser quantities in some other states.

Fullers earth gets its name because it was originally used for "fulling," that is for removing oils and greases from wool. It has a property, the nature of which is not fully understood. This is its ability to absorb coloring matter and so it is used for decolorizing various substances.

Oil refiners use it in large quantities for bleaching lubricating oils.

Another is the cuff of soft gray llama fur, fitting the arm closely like the sleeve of a dress and extending far over the hand, and the small turnover collar of which the back only is made of the fur. On the back of the coat a two-inch bias band of the cloth is stitched in the form of a panel, beginning at each shoulder seam, and rounded at the bottom, in the form of a deep U, which is the fashionable outline of the neck in new decollete styles.

The AMERICAN LEGION

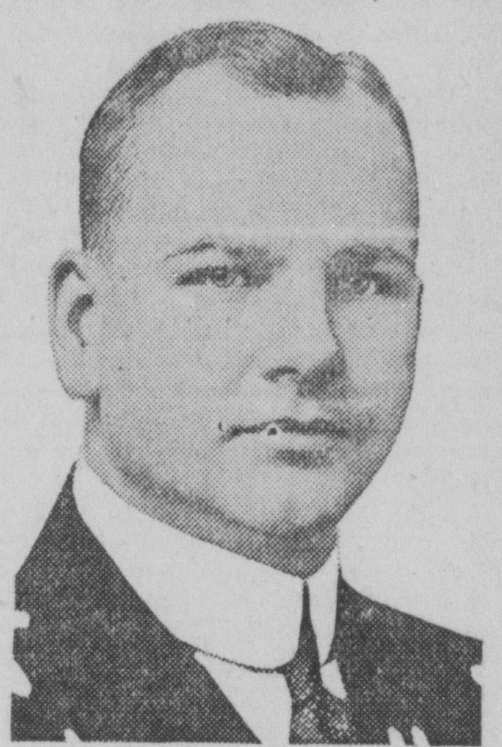

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

TO BROADEN CHILD WELFARE PROGRAM

Improved desertion and non-support legislation is considered by State Senator Sherman W. Child of Minneapolis, Minn., to be the most important single item in the American Legion's child welfare program recently inaugurated to obtain better laws in various states. Senator Child, an attorney, has been appointed vice chairman of the Legion's national child welfare committee to guide the legislative phase of this work.

"Desertion and nonsupport laws should be improved in order to make extradition easier," Senator Child said. "Even in those states where excellent laws regarding desertion and nonsupport exist, extradition often is made impossible for various reasons. Usually the wife must furnish the money to extradite the husband, and it is the wife who needs her husband's support to properly care for their children who cannot furnish the money for extradition."

"Also, the public's sympathy does not go out to a deserted wife as it does to the widow in needy circumstances, although her situation often is more critical in the case of desertion than it would be if the husband had died."

Sherman W. Child.

Senator Child places improved desertion and nonsupport legislation at the top of what he calls a minimum program he has arranged for Legion officials of the various states.

"In the last decade there has been a tremendous swing of public opinion to the economy of child welfare legislation," he said. "The American Legion is in a strategic position to give direction and leadership to the national impulse. The Legion is the natural advocate of that higher patriotism which looks forward to an improved race and an improved ability to maintain high standards of living and production."

"The problem under our government is a state problem and the immediate control over legislation to support this end is in the state legislatures."

"Besides the desertion and nonsupport legislation, our minimum program calls for a widowed mother's allowance law consonant with the conditions in each state; the creation of a central children's bureau in each state under a proper state department, and the provision for an unpaid county children's bureau. A state commission of interested persons, appointed by the governor, to study the matter and codify the laws is recommended."

"Matters like supervision of child-caring institutions, organization of courts handling juvenile delinquents and preventing dependency will be considered in states which already have the minimum provisions."

Trophy to Auxiliary for School Betterment Work

The state department of the American Legion auxiliary which each year does the most constructive and systematic work in developing and strengthening the public school system of its state will be awarded a gold trophy cup. It was announced recently by national headquarters of the auxiliary in Indianapolis. It will be known as the Bolles trophy and has been donated by the department of Washington in the name of Lemuel Bolles, former national adjutant of the Legion, and Mrs. Bolles. Washington is Bolles' home state.

Brig. Gen. E. L. Logan to Attend Paris Session

Brig. Gen. Edward L. Logan, wartime commander of the One Hundred and First Infantry, Twenty-sixth (Yankee) division as a colonel, and now in command of the same division, a National Guard outfit, has made reservation for the trip to Paris in September for the ninth annual convention of the American Legion. General Logan attended the organizing meeting of the Legion in Paris when the Legion was founded. He was department commander for Massachusetts in 1920-21.

GENE TUNNEY'S

Society Whirl Hasn't Turned His Head.

John L. Sullivan, Bob Fitzsimmons, and the rest of the old-time bruisers must turn over in their graves at the tea table exploits of Gene Tunney, the present heavyweight champion whose conquest of fashionable society is described by Robert Ingerly in an article in this week's Liberty.

"Fashionable society as an institution," the writer explains, "knew very little about Mr. Tunney before last September. He arrived in New York shortly after defeating Jack Dempsey, with a world made only vaguely curious about him by newspaper headlines and radio broadcasting. There is a social element in Manhattan that goes in for celebrities. Mr. Tunney, the champion, was cautiously asked to a party or two. A great many people met him. Presently word went around that the new champion was a charming fellow; modest, presentable, even amusing. Then came the interesting news that, although most people who wanted to meet him had been introduced, he was still being asked about. Also that Mr. Tunney's head was not in the least turned."

"If you analyze Mr. Tunney's conquests," the writer continues, "you will probably find at the bottom that he has an instinctive flair for nice people. He knew plenty of them before he became champion. It was not until after he became champion, however, that Tunney had a chance to meet so many of the kind of people he wanted to meet, with whom he got along. They came to him because he was champion and stayed because they liked him."

Cities Losing Residents

Villages and small towns are again showing increase in population, contrary to popular understanding. As a matter of fact the Institute of Social and Religious Research has found from heretofore unpublished census figures that the rate of city population increase in 1900 to 1920, fell from 84 per cent to 52.1 per cent, while the rural rate was pushed up to 20.7 per cent.

The discrepancy is due to government bookkeeping, according to Robert McCulluch who made a study for the survey. The government automatically changes a town or village to a city when it reaches 2,500 population.

After giving her grandson, Attorney Edmond Selby Dillon, 250 shares of the preferred stock, valued at $25,000, Mrs. Selby bequeathed stock valued at $50,000 each to four sons, Pearl E. Selby, of Cleveland, and Mark, Homer and Roger Selby, of Portsmouth. The residue, valued at $150,000 is left to her widower, George D. Selby is chairman of the board of the Selby Shoe Company and President of the Security Bank of Portsmouth.

Early Colonial Domain

The expression "Old Colony" originally applied to that part of Massachusetts included in the limits of the Plymouth colony, but afterwards was used to designate the entire state. In 1692 the Plymouth and Massachusetts bay colonies, which for many years had been independent of each other, were united in one province, bearing the name Massachusetts.—Kansas City Star.

SOCIAL AFFAIRS

Mrs. Robert Brehmer, of Circleville, was hostess to a number of her Chillicothe friends when she entertained Friday evening with a most delightful bridge-dinner, at her new home in North Court street.

The house was charmingly decorated with garden flowers and the three tables at which the guests found their places for the delicious dinner were centered with vases of lilies of the valley.

At the conclusion of the interesting bridge game prizes were awarded Miss Catherine Stocklen and Mrs. Fred Rinkliff.

Guests at the affair were: Mrs. John Wilkins, Mrs. Walter Brewer, Mrs. Fred Winkliff, Miss Catherine Stocklen, Miss Margaret Repple, Misses Edna and Anna Brust, Misses Viola and Irene Mader and Mrs. George Mathewson, of Winnipeg, Canada.—Chillicothe News-Advertiser.

to the competitive contest arranged by the Grand Chancellor of the domain of Ohio. The purpose of this contest of the ritual also to make the work more impressive to the candidate. Each competing team is graded on the strict wording as in the ritual and the manner of delivering same, each man on the team being allowed a possible score so that the highest score that can be given

Philos lodge conferred the third rank Monday evening with Brothers

from the judges also a grade that

SANITATION VALUABLE IN RAISING PIGS

It Has Proven More Profitable Than Rearing Them
in Filth.

One hundred and fifty-four Illinois
farmers raised their usual number of pigs from one-fourth fewer sows by practicing swine sanitation. The recommendations and practices which
these men followed will be explained
by those connected with the swine
sanitation Special over the Baltimore
and Ohio railroad stopping at Orient
June 6, from 8:30 a. m. to 12 m. and
at Mt. Sterling June 6, at 1 p. m.

Farmers following this plan report
fewer losses of little pigs between farrowing and weaning. Runty pigs
are almost entirely eliminated when
these control measures are followed.
Because the pigs are free from internal parasites and are not handicapped by some of the filth born diseases, they gain more rapidly.

Seven weeks were saved in the
time necessary to reach marketable weight. This saving means more profitable returns when the recommendations are followed.

Ohio farmers who have cooperated
with the university on this project report equally good results. These results have been obtained without heavy expenditure of money. Changing management plans will do the work, according to County Agent H.
S. Lewis, who is looking after plans
for the special train.

Mr. Lewis wants all the farmers
who raise hogs to plan on attending
and seeing the demonstrations which
will show why common round worms
play havoc with little pigs. While the common round worm is the most troublesome of the internal parasites
infesting swine, other internal parasites and their control measures will be mentioned. Diseases such as bull nose and necrotic enteritis (chronic scours) are eliminated by following
the practices which control round
worms.

AN EXAMPLE TO OTHERS

The treatment of prisoners in one
South Australian jail is remarkably humane. A regular visitor inquired
recently regarding an old offender:

"What's wrong with Bill? He seems to have a grouch?"

"No wonder," said one of his mates.
"He threatened the warden with a shovel today and now they won't let
him go to choir practice."

Real Proof

"That," said Mr. Newrich, pointing
to a painting in his library, "is a magnificent art treasure."

"How do you know? By the artist's signature?"

"No; by my own signature on the check I gave the dealer."

ARMED MEN TO PROTECT BANKS

Elaborate Alarm System Is Being Planned by Bankers of Michigan.

Detroit, Mich.—Goaded into action
by the frequency of bank robberies,
the Michigan Bankers' association has determined to inaugurate a plan of arming vigilantes all over the state
with rifles and pistols and training
them in the use of these weapons.
This is the statement of H. M. Brown,
secretary of the Michigan Bankers' association, while discussing the move.

The plan contemplates an armed organization in every county, built around the sheriff. The vigilantes appointed will be sworn in as regular deputy sheriffs, but the arms and
equipment will be furnished by the various county bankers' federations.

A reward of $1,000 will be offered
in every county for the apprehension
of bandits, dead or alive. Some of the counties plan to offer a reward of
$2,500 for a dead bandit and $1,000
if he is taken alive.

Heading up the vigilante movement
for the financiers are Paul J. Ulrich,
president of the Ulrich Savings bank,
Mount Clemens; F. W. Merrick, vice president of the Pigeon State bank, Lansing, and B. P. Sherwood, president of the Grand Haven State bank,
Grand Haven.

Deputies in Every County.

Under the plan as outlined there will be deputized from three to fifty vigilantes in every county that has a bank.

These men will be armed with .45
caliber pistols and high-powered Krag
rifles with a killing power at a mile and a half. Fast automobiles will be stationed within easy access to each
bank and the vigilantes will be trained to mobilize quickly, as soon
as the alarm is sounded.

The plan also contemplates a system of silent alarms stationed in various parts of the bank. The wires
leading from the silent alarms will be encased in steel sheathes to prevent cutting.

These alarms will lead to various places in the city or town where the vigilantes are stationed. In the event
of a bank attack it is only necessary
to step on a button. The alarm does not sound inside of the bank and the robber will not be aware that while
he is in action, vigilantes are mobilizing on the outside to meet him with a
ball of lead as he emerges.

Secret telephones will also be installed, while a system of widespread alarm will be worked out with the local telephone companies.

In the larger cities a paralyzing gas
will be used which can be set off from any point in the bank, completely paralyzing the bandits at the teller's windows.

Many of the counties are planning
to install sirens emitting a sound different from any factory whistle or fire
alarm, which will be heard for a distance of at least five miles in all directions. Immediately after the robbery
these sirens will begin to sound, warning the country that a bank has been robbed and that the bandits are escaping over the highways. This is done in conjunction with that part of the plan that enlists the help of the farmers all over the county.

The vigilante plan that is being launched by the Michigan Bankers' association is the same in most respects
as the one under which the Indiana
bankers have been working for the last year and a half. During that time
the Indiana Bankers' association has seen its bank attacks reduced 84 per cent and its bank losses 79 per cent,
according to H. M. Brown.

Plan of Army Officer.

Joseph Rylands, former army officer, who inaugurated the plan in Indiana, has been secured by the Michigan Bankers' association to initiate
the plan in Michigan.

When the plan is functioning correctly, according to Chairman Ulrich
of the state protective committee, all
the law enforcing officers in the state
will be co-ordinating with a watchful
citizenry that has been aroused to action by the increasing boldness of the criminals. It is expected, Mr. Ulrich said, that at least 1,000 armed vigi-lantes will be sworn in during the next four months.

One feature of the plan which of necessity cannot be divulged, Mr.
Sherwood said, is a series of "death
traps" that will be arranged in each banking community. Another feature is a system of road blockade that will insure the appearance of 150 to 300
men on all highways within 15 minutes after a bank is attacked.

"We are deadly in earnest about this vigilante plan," Mr. Sherwood stated. "It appears that nothing except the use of force will put an end
to the depredations of these potential
murderers. Very well, if that is necessary to curb them, we will be glad to see that they get it."

Something New in Fowls

A new type of fowl is being raised
in Alberta to supplant the high-priced
holiday turkey. A cross between a turkey and a chicken, the "turken" resembles the turkey in head and body,
but in size, comb and wattles it is
more like the chicken.

of dogs.—Louisville Times.

FATHER AND 5 SONS IN PRISON

Moonshine and Tennessee Mountain Life Blamed for Downfall.

Cincinnati, Ohio.—Five of his sons in felon's cells, the eldest condemned to a living death—life sentence, with out hope of pardon, for the cold blooded murder of a young woman—the sixth, barely fifteen, snatched from him by the law in the hope that change of environment may eradicate the criminal tendencies that apparently are inherent, Frank Angilan, fifty-three, liquor-soaked product of the Tennessee hills, is in the county jail meditating on an ill-spent life.

Like a tale from the Arabian Nights reads the story of the sons, whose criminal machinations have run the gamut from common larceny to automobile theft, burglary, arson, assault, highway robbery and, finally, murder. It was the brutal slaying of Shirley Garton, referred to as the "flaxen-haired flapper," a young and estranged wife, whose life was snuffed out by a bullet from behind as she indulged in a petting party with Peter Brown, on a lonely road, which bared the details of many roadside robberies and other crimes in which three Angilan brothers confessed participation, as well as the checkered page of a lifetime of more or less serious crimes in which the male members of the family revealed.

Ill-Fitted to Face World.

Psychologists will contend, and not without substantial basis, that the hemmed-in life in the mountain valleys that precluded schooling and a healthy environment sounds the keynote. Certain it is the Angilan family emerged from their cabin in the hills, ill-fated to face the pitfalls of the outer world and were easy prey to the glib-tongued criminals infesting the city.

It was easy for Bill Angilan, unsophisticated mountain lad of seventeen, when the family migrated to Cincinnati 12 years ago, to have his head turned by the easy manner in which, under the tutelage of the criminals with whom he had cast his lot, he "stripped" an automobile—his first job. The accessories and fees did not bring much return financially, but to the mind of the mountain youth to whom a dollar was almost a fortune, it was big money. And getting it was so easy.

Again and again the gang essayed similar jobs successfully, until the small return began to pall on Angilan. Big, raw-boned mountaineer, with muscles hardened by hardship, he visioned real money in a bigger field, leaving the auto jobs to the pickers.

It was easy to induce his brother John two years his junior, to join him in leadership of what became known to the underworld as the Angilan gang, the existence of which, strange to say, was unknown to the authorities until a keen-eyed patrolman, following a slender clue, brought about the arrest of one of the gang, which proved the opening wedge in tearing apart the well-constructed alibis and revealed the gruesome tale of theft, assault and murder.

Brothers Make Confessions.

With the elder Angilan, now twenty-nine, a confessed murderer, awaiting only a jury to decide whether death or life without hope of pardon should be the penalty exacted; his brothers John and George, the latter only sixteen years old, confessed participants with Bill, and Cecil Bennett and Gordon Lawrence, other members of the gang in jail pending trial, the wheels of justice began to move swiftly.

One by one the remaining Angilans were disposed of, Franklin, twenty, going to Atlanta for automobile stealing; Ted, seventeen, to Mansfield reformatory for a similar crime, the father in jail on a drunkenness and neglect charge, and Ernest, the baby and the lone male Angilan as yet apparently unstained by crime, ordered to the children's home by the court in the hope of saving him. Followed the quick conviction of Bill with a life sentence with pardon barred; life for John Angilan and Bennett, and the reformatory and later the penitentiary for George Angilan and Lawrence, minors.

Through the maze of crime and intrigue surrounding the Angilans there stalks the vision of two sisters, who in reality are the chief sufferers as the result of paternal neglect and illiteracy of the mountains that sent their brothers into the world potential criminals. The Angilan sisters took the road directly opposite to that selected by their brothers and today are married happily.

Cuts Off Relatives to Benefit Girl Friend

Cambridge, Mass.—Cutting off three relatives from any share in an estate estimated at approximately $2,000,000, Miss Elizabeth Wentworth Roberts, internationally known painter, who committed suicide in her Concord home on March 12, left the income of the bulk of her fortune to her friend and companion, Grace B. Keyes of Concord. The will, filed here, fails to name the artist's three closest relatives, all consins. They are Elizabeth S. Wentworth of Philadelphia, Ellen C. Roberts of Topkinton, N. H., and Lorraine Melson of New York.

AMUSEMENTS

When Douglas McLean turned weather prophet and said, "Let It Rain," he really meant, "Let 'em Laugh!" Because, whether his current Paramount release which arrived at the Met theater last night, had that effect. An overflow audience was kept in ecstasies of joy for seventy snappy minutes.

"Let It Rain" presents MacLean as a marine who awakes from a lethargy only after meeting "the one girl." Then, seeing an officer gain her attention, he determines to win his chevrons. How he does this by capturing a troop of mail thieves and saving the government's honor, provides the comedy with a stroy plot and plenty of laughs.

If you don't believe it, imagine what happens when Doug discovers himself aboard a mail train with two crooks. First, they get the upper hand; then he does; finally he ties one of them up in a mail sack and the prisoner starts shooting thru the canvas. Then, to make things even funnier, a third bandit, riding the brake rods, decides to cut the coach loose. And, the whole gang is marooned—on a runaway train which continues speeding down steep mountain grades.

Shirley Mason is Doug's bit of sunshine in "Let It Rain." Eddie Cline directed. See the picture. It won't wet your feet, is guaranteed to dry the tears and will positively deliver at least one smile per second!

MISSOURI MULE FAVORED FOR THRILLS

For those who crave excitement and thrill we would recommend a trip to Oaks park, Portland, Ore., there to experience a ride on the Missouri mule (pictured above). The Missouri mule to all appearance looks like a well-mannered flivver, but looks are deceiving—at least in this case—for the flivver is possessed of diabolic tendencies—and when in use may buck, rear and stall like a mule.

BIG IMPORTANCE OF LUBRICATION

Many Motorists Fail to See Why Frequent Change of Oil Is Vital.

In spite of the fact that manufacturers, garage men and dealers constantly stress the importance of frequent oil changes in engine lubrication, many motorists fail to see why this changing is so vital.

The introduction of improved lubrication systems, oil filters and devices to lessen oil dilution in the crankcase has done much to cut down lubrication troubles, but the subject of oil changing still demands the careful attention of the motorist.

What Happens to Unchanged Oil.
What happens when you fail to change oil? In the first place, heat produces a chemical change in oil which causes it to lose its lubricating qualities. Gasoline may become mixed with the oil, lowering its efficiency. When there is no oil filter, particles of metal from the wearing surfaces and a certain amount of dirt and rust which accumulate in the crankcase oil may be forced to the engine operating parts. Unless all the oil is drained out of the crankcase, foreign matter will remain there. It is not sufficient to add only enough oil to keep the proper level.

A new engine requires more frequent oil changes than an engine which is "broken in," because new bearing surfaces throw off a greater number of metal particles. After the first 500 miles of driving, it is advisable to change the oil in the engine. Repeat this operation every 2,500 miles in warm weather, and every 1,000 miles in cold weather.

What Kind of Oil to Use.
Fortunately for the motorist, oil service is today so highly developed that it is possible to get disinterested advice from filling-station service men, oil dealers and garage men as to the best type of oil to use for your engine. In addition to this, manufacturers issue booklets of instruction with new cars, telling just what sort of oil to use for best results.

Remember that, at speeds of 40 miles an hour or greater, oil consumption by the motor is considerably higher than at lower speeds. With ordinary driving, the motor may consume one quart of oil every 125 miles of travel, but this amount becomes greater as speed increases.

Best Time to Overhaul Auto and Refinish Body

Fastidious car owners who want to begin the spring months with an automobile that is mechanically perfect and spick-and-span in appearance should take advantage of the present season to have their cars overhauled and refinished.

Repair and refinishing establishments are less rushed at this season than at any other time of year. Cars put up for either or both types of work now will be given attention that cannot be commanded when the demand for speed becomes great.

At no other time can an owner so well afford to be without his car.

Lining Up Front Wheels

Many car owners fail to make headway when lining up the front wheels because they fail to true up the wheels and tires separately. The front wheels may toe in the proper amount, but the rims may not run true, thus throwing the tires out of line. This can be determined by revolving the wheels separately and noting how true they turn. Any variation may be due to the wheels being too loose on the axles or to the rims being screwed to the wheels unevenly.

Motorcycle CoupePopular in Paris

The inside drive motorcycle coupe is on the streets of Paris.

It looks like a normal motorcycle with a one-man body, top, windshield, curtains and all, placed well forward so the steering can be done comfortably with the long handle-bars.

A small radiator in front, over the steering wheel, makes the vehicle look like a small automobile.

The motor is under the body with the starting crank at the rear. A small third wheel to the right rear, supports the car at rest.

Baby Carrier for AutoSafe and Comfortable

When riding in the rear seat of a car it is quite difficult to hold a baby comfortably, but by providing a carrier the trouble will be eliminated. The carrier shown in the drawing consists of a canvas bag, the open top of which is held rigid by a wood or metal frame. Lengths of brass or galvanized chain and two coil springs, to serve as shock absorbers, are attached as indicated, and the baby will be safe and comfortable. To prevent the crib from lurching it should be fastened to the back of the front seat near the bottom by means of a short coil spring.—Carlton Groat, The Dalles, Ore., in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Numbering Gear Shift to Help in Handling Lever

In teaching his wife to drive a motorist found that she was having great difficulty in remembering the several gear-shift positions, and as a result was slowing up her shifting considerably, due to having to stop to think which lever position was which. He hit upon the idea of employing some small metal numbers, such as might be used for small signs and the like. Procuring a "1," "2," "3" and an "R," he nailed them to the footboard in proper position to indicate the way the lever had to be shifted to effect any given speed change. The idea worked to advantage, and the beginner had only to glance down at the numbers to know exactly which way to carry the lever, eliminating all uncertainty.

AUTOMOBILE NOTES

See that the generator charges sufficient amperage at all times to avoid battery damage.

Motorists have paid liberally and without complaint for good roads. The "detour" still persists.

Keep the foot flat on the floor board, unless actually shifting gears or slowing quickly to a stop.

Blow your auto horn at the railroad crossing so that the limited train will know you're around and won't run the risk of being knocked from the right-of-way.

Radio Permit FormsAsk "Intimate" Facts

Washington.—Form sheets on which operators of broadcasting radio stations must make their application to the new federal radio commission for permission to continue business have been completed and are being forwarded to district supervisors of the Commerce department radio section.

As disclosed by the application forms, the commission intends to find out from each station whether any alien ownership or interest exist in it; whether the station owner has been found guilty in any Federal court of monopolistic practice, and under what conditions and on what schedules it has operated. Details of operation also are requested and the station operator is asked for his own views on why the station should be adjusted as in the public interest.

The forms also may be used in applying for permission to start new stations. Sworn answers to all the questions are requested.

Why
Firestone
GUM-DIPPED TIRES
Wear Longer

WE recently were given the tremendous advantage of having the mammoth Firestone factories brought to us. In Tire Educational Meetings we were shown, by means of motion pictures, charts, tire samples and complete engineering data, the details of Firestone tire design and construction—and how Firestone and Oldfield tires and tubes are made in the world's most efficient and economical rubber factories.

Firestone pioneered the original low-pressure tire and made it practical by Gum-Dipping. The motion pictures showed us how the cords of the carcass are dipped in a rubber solution, thoroughly saturating and insulating every fiber of every cord with rubber. Simple demonstrations and tests illustrated the great advantage of this process, which supplies the extra strength to withstand the extra flexing strains of low-pressure construction—one of the reasons why Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires are establishing such unheard-of mileage records.

We learned why the Firestone Balloon Tread gives extra safety, comfort and long wear. We were shown why Firestone, from the very beginning, designed and continue to use the round Balloon Tread, minimizing “shoulder breaks”, so destructive to tires. Excess rubber at the edges of a Balloon Tread is wasted—actually detrimental to tire mileage. In the Firestone Tread the small units and sharp projections are scientifically placed to permit easy flexing, resulting in extraordinary riding comfort.

Come in and let us put a set of these Gum-Dipped Tires on your car—you can forget about tire trouble. Quality is higher than ever before—prices are lowest in history. Buy now!

Nell and Her Own Revolution

By H. IRVING KING

LAS ANIMAS looked beautiful from the sea and smelled horribly from the shore. Back of it rose the majestic Andes, snow-crowned against the deep blue sky, and in front of it a roadstead swung glittering in the sun. On a hill above the town stood the administration building of the American company that operated the mines back in the mountains and the narrow-gauge railroad connecting them with Las Animas' only dock. In locating the administration building the idea of a defensive position had not been lost sight of; for in Las Animas one never can tell what will happen.

Just now the administration building was housing guests—Mr. George K. Lambton, president of the company, his stately wife, Maria, and his entirely charming daughter, Nellie. Two reasons had brought the party to this remote place—Mr. Lambton's desire to inspect the property of the company and Mrs. Lambton's desire to get Nellie away from the vicinity of Lieut. Vincent Granger, U. S. N., stationed at the Brooklyn navy yard. Vincent had nothing but his pay; Carroll Whitworth was worth a million at least.

Mr. Lambton had been two weeks in Las Animas when he began to get nervous. There was a rebellion brewing, old Pancho, the major domo of the administration building, told him so; as, also, did Pepe, one of the leading natives up at the mines. He could see signs of it everywhere and here he was with his wife and daughter on his hands and all this American property—and not an American gunboat nearer than San Pedro, one hundred and fifty miles up the coast! It was in vain that Jenkins, the company's superintendent, assured him: "Old Sanchez has got the lid on tight. There'll be no ructions as long as El Presidente has ammunition for firing squads and church walls are handy." Lambton knew better. Mrs. Lambton demanded that her husband cable to Washington and have a gunboat sent to Las Animas. Finally he did so and the Gull was ordered down from San Pedro.

The following morning Jenkins and the other "gringo" employees of the administration building started off early for the mines, leaving the Lambtons alone with old Pancho and a few native clerks and servants. "The Gull ought to be here by noon," said Jenkins; "that will make you feel safer, though I assure you there is not the slightest cause for your alarm." Noon came but no gunboat.

After the siesta hour, however, all their fears awoke. Mrs. Lambton began to grow hysterical. For there was an unwonted agitation going on in the town; a hurrying to and fro, a loud calling of voices, a flaunting of banners and the sounds of martial music.

Lambton called old Pancho: "What was it?"

"The revolution," said Pancho and disappeared.

"Now, father," said Nellie. "I guess you will acknowledge that the United States navy is of some use after all. If Vincent were only here!"

"I wish to heaven he was," said Lambton, "or any other officer. The sight of a naval uniform just now would be worth all I have in the world. There, look, see that smoke off there? There comes the gunboat."

A little later there strode into the great living room of the administration building a young officer in uniform of white and gold who saluted Lambton and said: "I was ordered down from San Pedro to report to the president of the American Mining company here for the protection of lives and property of Americans. A slight accident to our machinery delayed our arrival a few hours."

"You have saved our lives, Lieutenant Granger," said Lambton; "I can't thank you enough."

"What would have become of us if you hadn't come," cried Mrs. Lambton. "Nellie, thank our deliverer. Give him your hand."

"For keeps?" inquired Vincent with a sly smile.

"Oh yes, anything you like—I withdraw my opposition. Don't you, George?" babbled Mrs. Lambton.

"Yes, yes; certainly," replied Lambton. "We'd all be dead if he had not arrived."

Just then in came, laughing and talking, Jenkins and the rest returned from the mines. "So the Gull got here, has it?" said Jenkins. "Glad to see you, lieutenant. Your presence will add to the comfort of our esteemed chief."

"How is the revolution going?" asked Lambton of Jenkins.

"Revolution?" was the reply.

"What revolution?"

"Don't you hear it down in the town?" said Lambton.

"Oh," laughed Jenkins, "that is just Las Animas celebrating its patron saint's day—a fiesta."

"How did you manage it?" asked Vincent of Nellie when, at last, they were alone together in a corner of the veranda.

"Oh, when you wrote that you had been ordered to the Gull, and I knew that the Gull was at San Pedro, I got up a little revolution of my own to bring you down here. You will have to help me pay off my army, though. Pancho and Pepe are the most avaricious old scoundrels I ever met. I had to give them every cent of my last month's allowance to join my forces and I still owe 'em."

WHO HAS THE RUNTIEST PIG IN THE COUNTY

Stanley Lewis, County Agent
Farm Bureau, Wants
the Specimen

County Agent H. S. Lewis is looking for the runtiest pig in Packaway county. The pig will be killed and a post mortem examination made by Dr. H. B. Reffensperger, of the United States department of agriculture as the concluding feature of the program when the Baltimore and Ohio Swine Sanitation Special comes to Orient June 6 at 8:30-12 M., and at Mt. Sterling June 6 at 1-5 P. M.

Mr. Lewis explains that the name of the owner of the prize runt will not be made public. If the pig has had an opportunity to obtain feed and has not thrived, his trouble is very apt to be due to internal parasites. An examination of the internal organs of the pig will show the reason for the handicap. More runts are due to internal parasites than to any other one factor. The worm control measures which were worked out by Dr. Reffensperger and his associates are the greatest factor in developing a more profitable hog business since the discovery of hog cholera serum.

The following program is announced for the train. As the farmers arrive they will be asked to register so that the county agent may learn the names of the farmers who are responsible for producing Pickaway county's hog crop.

O. K. Quivey, of Baltimore, general agricultural agent for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad will discuss The Railroad's Interest in Agriculture. Paul Gerlaugh of Ohio State university will talk on Protein Supplements and Mineral Feeds. Dr. Reffensperger will tell the life cycle of the round worm and the practices to be followed in controlling these worms when he discusses Swine Sanitation.

The exhibit cars will be open and someone will be there to explain the exhibits between 8:30 and 12 A. M. and 1:30 to 5 P. M.

ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY LIVES TAKEN

BY A DEVASTATING STORM MONDAY IN THE SOUTHWEST

One Thousand Injured In Path of Storm Leading From Texas To Illinois—Four Million Dollars In Property Loss Is Estimated—Forty Dead, One Hundred Injured At Popular Bluff, Mo.—Train Blown From Tracks At Hoxie, Arkansas.

Upward of 100 persons were killed, 1,000 injured and property damage of more than $4,000,000 was done by a tornado originating in Texas, which moved northward thru Kansas, Missouri and Arkansas, where it became a series of tornadoes, and then lost much of its force as it passed over Illinois and into Indiana in the form of a violent wind and rain storm Monday.

The tornado struck with greatest destructive power at Popular Bluff, Missouri, where more than a score were reported to be dead and 250 injured by the storm, which wrecked part of the city, after which fire added to the destruction.

The cyclonic winds twice struck Missouri Monday, the first tornado, smiting before the dawn, took 12 lives and the second, which centered at Popular Bluff, added 20 to 30 more to the casualties.

In Arkansas, upward of 30 lives were lost when a tornado struck a score or more towns and villages.

Texas reported a death list of 32 in four towns.

The tornado also reached into Illinois and Kentucky, at least one person being killed in Illinois. In Kentucky a number were injured.

Added to the above terrific toll were the 10 persons killed by a tornado which tore a path thru Kansas Saturday night.

Following is a summary of the tornado's toll of Monday.

Missouri—Popular Bluff more than a score killed, business section of town virtually destroyed; Eldon and Olean, 6 killed; Auxvasse, New Bloomfield and Carrington, in Calloway county, 5 dead; St. Louis, one killed.

Texas—Nevada, 16 dead; Garland, 10; Wolfe, 4, and Kellogg, 2.

Arkansas—Strong where loss of life is unchecked, but heavy; Egypt, 7 dead; Walnut Ridge, 4; Hoxie, 7 killed; Carlisle, 1 dead; Norphlet, several dead; Pierce's Mill, 3 dead; Paul's Switch, 2 dead; Toledo, 1 dead.

MRS. HICKLE DEAD.

Mrs. Caroline Rauck Hickle, widow of Jacob Hickle, passed away at her home, 812 East Main street, Chillicothe, Sunday evening at 9:45, following an illness due to complications.

Mrs. Hickle was born at Hallsville on November 17, 1847, the daughter of John and Elizabeth Hickle and was married in April, 1868, to Jacob Hickle, who died in 1912. She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. A. Reichelderfer, Mrs. J. M. Stauffer and Miss Ada Hickle at home and one sister, Mrs. Martha Reedy of Essex Ontario, Canada.

She was a member of the Hallsville U. B. church and was a faithful attendant as long as her health permitted. Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. H. O. Thompson and Rev. Shaw officiating. Burial in the Dresbach cemetery at Hallsville.

REAL ESTATE DEAL

Thru the Circle Realty Co., the Thornton property formerly owned by W. H. Dotter, on North Washington street, was sold to Ira B. Weiler and wife.

Other towns struck by the tornado, such as England, had been unable to report their loss of late Monday night.

Illinois—1 dead.

Upward of 30 persons were known to be dead and an undetermined number injured as a result of a tornado which cut a path thru more than a dozen towns and communities in northeastern Arkansas Monday afternoon.

Unverified reports placed the dead at a much larger figure and the toll mounted as news trickled thru broken lines of communication.

With seven dead, the village of Egypt was a heavy sufferer from the storm, which crossed over into Missouri after lashing a path of destruction thru Arkansas.

Other towns with varying reports of loss of life or property damage were; Hoxie, Paul's Switch, Hunter, Carlisle, Imboden, Lonoke, Winesburg, England and Black Rock. No casualties, however, were reported from Black Rock.

Communication with the whole district was meager.

WUNDERLUST.

Ray, the ten year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Neal, of 228 East Second street, Columbus, was picked up on the Columbus pike Tuesday morning by George C. Laining, a tourist, and was brought to this city and turned over to Juvenile Officer Mrs. Carrie A. Patton.

The boy ran off from school and said he was bound for Bluefield, West Virginia, to visit his sister, Mrs. Snow Belcher. He was returned to Columbus.

GOV. DONAHEY MAKES DEMAND ON ASSEMBLY

Demands That Senator Chappelear's Election Measure Be Passed.

Unless the general assembly passes the Chappellear election recodification bill, or its equivalent, before adjournment, Governor Vic Donahey will call that body back in an extraordinary session to complete this task.

The declaration was made by the chief executive Monday in an urgent message to the house of representatives pleading for the passage of the new election bill with its permanent registration feature. This bill has already passed the senate but has never been reported out of the elections committee in the house.

"If the party platforms mean anything," he said, "if the oath to observe the party pledges which every member of the General assembly took when he became a candidate, means anything; if the demand for economy and a reduction in the needless cost of government is to be met, then one of the ways by which the pledges and responsibilities can be fulfilled is to enact Amended Substitute Senate bill No. 20 the Chappellear bill) or its equivalent.

The governor also appealed for the passage of the Lefever bill allowing the appointment of attorney examiners by the state public utilities commission.

MURDERERS OF ALBERT SNYDER FOUND GUILTY

Ruth Brown Snyder and
Henry Judd Gray To Be
Electrocuted.

Mrs. Ruth Brown Snyder and Henry Judd Gray are to pay with their lives for the crime that snatched them from obscurity and made them internationally known.

Deliberating less than two hours, a jury Monday convicted them of the murder of Mrs. Snyder's husband, Albert Snyder, magazine art editor. Death sentence is mandatory for first degree murder, but the formality of sentence was postponed until next Monday morning.

Cheers greeted the verdict when it was flashed to the crowd outside Long Island city's supreme court. In side the court the verdict was received in silence. Neither defendant exhibited any great emotion, and appeared to be either too dazed to comprehend its portent, or to be only hearing what they had expected.

When, after the usual formalities, the foreman uttered his "both guilty of murder in the first degree," Mrs. Snyder's blonde head, professionally dressed for the occasion by a hairdresser, jerked perceptibly. Her eyes roved like those of one fainting, then she stiffened, and thus, erect and proud, she sat while the jury was polled.

But Gray, whose plea of dominance by the superior mind of Mrs. Snyder had led many to believe him to be less the stoic, made no more fuss about the matter than she.

Counsel for both deferred announcement of their intentions as regards appeals. Justice Townsend Scudder thanked the jurors and they left their seats, to be swept along in the stream of humanity outside. There they were greeted by cheers and flashlights, as photographers pressed around them.

The court room was jammed long before the verdict was announced.

The case was given to the jury at 5:29 o'clock Monday afternoon.

The insurance carried by Gray and the murdered man, Albert Snyder has caused a good deal of discussion. Gray was insured for $30,000. His victim carried a life policy of $96,000 made payable to his wife. Gray's policy was also made payable to his wife in the event of his death. If Gray is executed his wife will get the insurance. If his paramour, Mrs. Ruth Snyder, widow of Albert Snyder goes to the chair, her daughter, Lorraine, a nine year child will be the beneficiary.

Elyria, May 9.—(UP.)—Solitor D. W. Myers, one of the leaders in the protest of Ohio cities against a proposed increase in rates by the Logan Gas company, announced today he would confer with attorneys of other cities in the fight and recommend a new basis for settlement.

Myers' proposal includes:

That the rate for gas be fixed at a flat rate of 55 cents per thousand feet for two years.

That the Logan company be allowed to retain all of the money collected thus far.

That the various city councils involved might now agree that they would enter a contract on the basis of 60 cents per thousand for the second two years.

Help Yourself Library

There is a library containing 1,000 volumes in the church porch of St. Simon Stock, Putney, England. Would-be borrowers are invited to walk in and help themselves. There is nobody in charge, and, although many volumes are borrowed, it is seldom that any are lost. The library is the only one of its kind in the country.

BARTON WALTERS

Accidentally Struck Man Walking On Scioto Trail.

About midnight Sunday, Attorney Barton Walters returning to this city from Columbus, accidentally struck a man named Lee Waldon, of Columbus, walking on the west side of the Scioto Trail about a half mile north of South Bloomfield and knocked him into the ditch, cutting a gash on Waldon's forehead and bruising him about the body. Mr. Walters called Dr. Gardner from Ashville who rendered first aid to the injured man and removed him to his home in Columbus.

The accident was the result of the bright lights of an approaching car which prevented Mr. Walters from seeing Mr. Waldon, in time to stop his car, the fender of which struck Mr. Waldon.

Macerated Currency

After money is macerated in the United States treasury the pulp is made into sheets by the bureau of engraving and printing and is sold to the highest bidder. It used to be that one would see a great many souvenirs made from this pulp. Nowadays this is not done to such an extent.

Tailored Coat Is Given Preference

Lines of Spring Models Are Softened by Treatment of Materials.

The spring coats and hats have arrived and the models define very clearly the new styles. The immediate impression, says a fashion correspondent in the New York Times, is that of a subtle blending of simplicity and grace, of the severe and the ornamental. The fashionable coat for spring is cut on strictly tailored lines, and then is softened with a gentle elaborating handling of the fabric. This is one manner of working out the design, and constitutes the full extent to which the feminized model departs from the mannish tailor-made which is the conventional standard of smartness in street dress, sports clothes and, especially, in coats. The architecture of the spring coat is in the main one of straight lines, and the uncurved silhouette is shown to be still the mode, though the detail may suggest variation and add interest to a clever creation, however naive it may appear to be.

At first glance the spring models seem not to differ greatly from the styles of last autumn, but models from the best designers disclose points of distinction and much charm. There is an air of refinement about the new coats, contrasting to the bold and often bizarre modes of a year ago, plainly and most attractively illustrated in the first offerings from prominent Parisian couturiers.

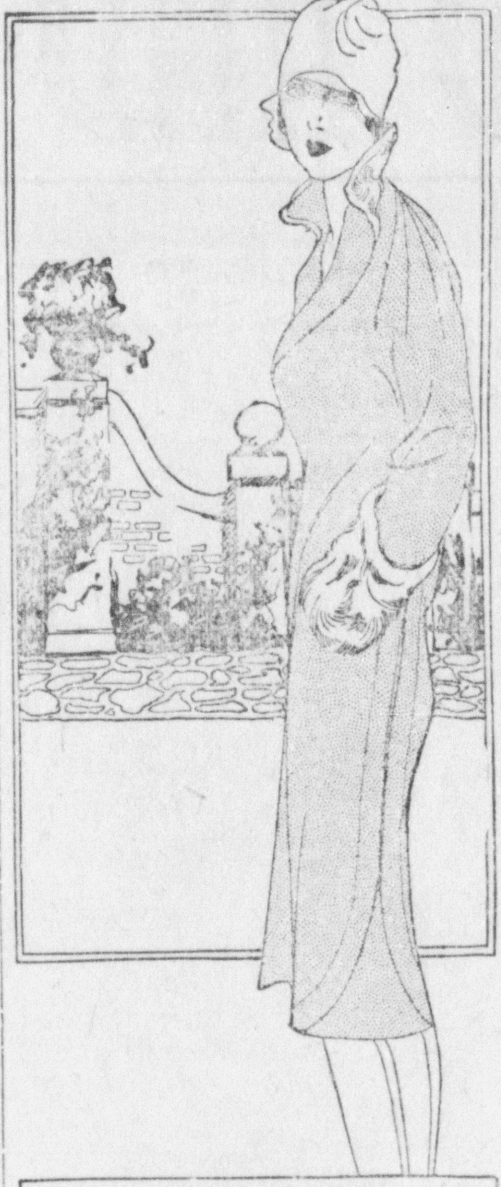

In this group of French origin is a novelty from Molyneux, a reversible coat that will answer most happily the requirements of many occasions. Molyneux is the author of this model, which is made of gray and blue kashaduvetyne, one side being of one color and the lining of the other. A detail in trimming is added in three strapbands of the cloth about the bottom, black stitched on the gray side and is reverse order. The neck is finished with a very simple collar of gray clipped caracul, the only touch of fur on the garment.

Tucks Instead of Seams.

Louise Boulanger also uses kashaduvetyne in her model, which is done in two shades of brown, havana and walnut. This design is strikingly original. In place of the regulation seams, the coat is fitted with diagonal tucks radiating from the high round line of the neck, yoke-depth over the front, back and shoulders. This is finished with a narrow strap collar and cravat with ends that tie, and has no fur. The coat itself is made of the higher shade of brown lined with the dark, and a cut-out border in geometric pattern of faille is applied about the bottom of the coat and in narrow bands at the wrists.

One more design of distinction comes from the Paris house of Paquin, a departure from the stereotyped garment illustrating an uncommon variation of line. This, too, is a straight cut coat, made of a velvety

Those of simpler design are without any particular diversity and wholly untrimmed with anything other than a light fur, usually just on the collar, some models having a band along the edges of the front. The new and more important styles are illustrating the varied lines, apparently quite simple but in reality complicated and very skillfully done. These curves and angles are designed to outline the figure in slim silhouette, in most flattering manner, emphasized with stitching which forms a tuck. The very latest treatment of the seam has the appearance of tucks with edges facing like a small inverted plait known as the slot seam. This is particularly effective in the plain fabrics—covert, reps, broadcloth and kasha in the smooth surface finish; manitoba, a coating designed for general town wear, and gleamcord, a trim, practical lustrous cloth with rayon threads, a perfect reversible.

One coat made in America promises to have a decided vogue among the younger set. It is made of kasha in two shades of tan, reversible and shows a cleverly constructed collar which may be worn on either side. This is formed of a strip of American caracul, clipped very close, the shade of the darker tone of the cloth. Another of these simple, straight-line coats is made of beige kasha and is lined with the same material of the exact shade, with a small collar and rather wide cuffs of ombre lapin that tones from cream to brown. This type of coat, which is both becoming and youthful, has caught the fancy of smartly dressed women and is being done in all the new colors, lined with the same shade or with another harmonious color, sometimes reversible according to the latest mode, and by some designers lined or faced with fancy silk.

Next in popularity, perhaps, is the coat of one of the new figured stuffs, self-toned or two-toned, and, in a few models, in mixtures or sharply marked blocks or checks. A lovely coat of the more elaborate type is made of gray homespun, soft in weave but rather loosely woven.

Adhere to Simplicity.

Spring coats of American design and manufacture adhere in the main to the season's standard of simplicity; but both originality and sense of form are illustrated in the great number of models gradually being brought out. To describe briefly one coat that may be worn with a tailored one-piece frock, a soft gown or made part of an ensemble is of rep bloom. In manzanita, one of the new and lovely shades of brown. In this model tucking, which has been given emphasis by all of the designers, both French and American, is introduced in clusters. On the back of the coat a small group of tucks extends from each shoulder straight to the hem. At the front, tucks in these clusters of three or five form two deep points, the upper one of which begins at the hip.

In sports coats designed for practical athletic activities there are many chic styles—the chevrons, homespuns, checks and mixtures. A coat that will be seen often with sports frocks and as part of a sports ensemble is a short model showing ten or twelve inches of the usual plaited skirt. One of these is made of navy mirabella, is severely plain in the back and has a front varied with seam lines that begin at the shoulder and form geometric patterns in the shape of a large pocket at each side. The front of the skirt is laid in narrow box plaits, the back width being perfectly plain. The sleeves are simply tailored and the neck of the coat has a narrow, deep revers collar, softened by the cravat scarf that attaches to the blouse underneath and is tied at one side of the neck with long ends.

Among the engaging styles for late spring and early summer is a coat that has had great success at the Southern resorts. It is made of white diagonal cheviot woven in block figure, is conventionally tailored with just a touch of mosaic inset in a cross section of the material on each large side pocket.

SMOOTHING THE PATHS OF TRADE

The rapidity with which American industries and trades are setting their houses in order in conformity with the basic idea of self-government in business is reflected in reports received by the Trade Relations Committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

A number of trades have within the past six months set up the machinery for ironing out trade practices by organizing joint committees representing manufacturing, wholesaling and retailing. Recently a committee of this kind was organized by the Automotive Equipment Association. Similar joint committees are contemplated by the following industries: Confectionery, drugs, fruits and vegetables, furniture, glass, millinery and stationery.

It is recognized that once the individual trades have established definite codes of business practice for themselves the next step will be the self-regulation of inter-industrial relations. Progress so far made indicates that business disputes can be settled much more efficaciously and promptly directly than by way of the courts and that business can do the job of self-government much better than an external commission or tribunal.

BIG DEPOSITS

Of Fullers Earth Is Discovered In Illinois.

Chicago, Ill., May 9.—Important deposits of fullers earth have been discovered and opened up in southern Illinois by the Sinclair Refining Co., according to a report of the Cairo, Ill., Chamber of Commerce. Deposits of fullers earth are now being worked in Florida, Georgia, Texas, California, South Dakota and New York and in lesser quantities in some other states.

Fullers earth gets its name because it was originally used for "fulling," that is for removing oils and greases from wool. It has a property, the nature of which is not fully understood. This is its ability to absorb coloring matter and so it is used for decolorizing various substances.

Oil refiners use it in large quantities for bleaching lubricating oils.

quality of duvetyne in a soft shade of terra cotta, with several new features in detail. One is the long shoulder, resembling an exaggerated raglan, with the seam dropped far down on the arm. Another is the cuff of soft gray llama fur, fitting the arm closely like the sleeve of a dress and extending far over the hand, and the small turnover collar of which the back only is made of the fur. On the back of the coat a two-inch bias band of the cloth is stitched in the form of a panel, beginning at each shoulder seam, and rounded at the bottom, in the form of a deep U, which is the fashionable outline of the neck in new decollete styles.

TO BROADEN CHILD WELFARE PROGRAM

Improved desertion and non-support legislation is considered by State Senator Sherman W. Child of Minneapolis, Minn., to be the most important single item in the American Legion's child welfare program recently inaugurated to obtain better laws in various states. Senator Child, an attorney, has been appointed vice chairman of the Legion's national child welfare committee to guide the legislative phase of this work.

"Desertion and non-support laws should be improved in order to make extradition easier," Senator Child said. "Even in those states where excellent laws regarding desertion and non-support exist, extradition often is made impossible for various reasons. Usually the wife must furnish the money to extradite the husband, and it is the wife who needs her husband's support to properly care for their children who cannot furnish the money for extradition."

"Also, the public's sympathy does not go out to a deserted wife as it does to the widow in needy circumstances, although her situation often is more critical in the case of desertion than it would be if the husband had died."

Senator Child places improved desertion and non-support legislation at the top of what he calls a minimum program he has arranged for Legion officials of the various states.

"In the last decade there has been a tremendous swing of public opinion to the economy of child welfare legislation," he said. "The American Legion is in a strategic position to give direction and leadership to the national impulse. The Legion is the natural advocate of that higher patriotism which looks forward to an improved race and an improved ability to maintain high standards of living and production."

"The problem under our government is a state problem and the immediate control over legislation to support this end is in the state legislatures."

"Besides the desertion and non-support legislation, our minimum program calls for a widowed mother's allowance law consonant with the conditions in each state; the creation of a central children's bureau in each state under a proper state department, and the provision for an unpaid county children's bureau. A state commission of interested persons, appointed by the governor, to study the matter and codify the laws is recommended."

"Matters like supervision of child-caring institutions, organization of courts handling juvenile delinquents and preventing dependency will be considered in states which already have the minimum provisions."

Trophy to Auxiliary for School Betterment Work

The state department of the American Legion auxiliary which each year does the most constructive and systematic work in developing and strengthening the public school system of its state will be awarded a gold trophy cup, it was announced recently by national headquarters of the auxiliary in Indianapolis. It will be known as the Bolles trophy and has been donated by the department of Washington in the name of Lemuel Bolles, former national adjutant of the Legion, and Mrs. Bolles, Washington is Bolles' home state.

Brig. Gen. E. L. Logan to Attend Paris Session

Brig. Gen. Edward L. Logan, war-time commander of the One Hundred and First Infantry, Twenty-sixth (Yankee) division as a colonel, and now in command of the same division, a National Guard outfit, has made reservation for the trip to Paris in September for the ninth annual convention of the American Legion. General Logan attended the organizing meeting of the Legion in Paris when the Legion was founded. He was department commander for Massachusetts in 1920-21.

GENE TUNNEY'S Society Whirl Hasn't Turned His Head.

John L. Sullivan, Bob Fitzsimmons, and the rest of the old-time bruisers must turn over in their graves at the tea table exploits of Gene Tunney, the present heavyweight champion whose conquest of fashionable society is described by Robert Ingerley in an article in this week's Liberty.

"Fashionable society as an institution," the writer explains, "knew very little about Mr. Tunney before last September. He arrived in New York shortly after defeating Jack Dempsey, with a world made only vaguely curious about him by newspaper headlines and radio broadcasting. There is a social element in Manhattan that goes in for celebrities. Mr. Tunney, the champion, was cautiously asked to a party or two. A great many people met him. Presently word went around that the new champion was a charming fellow; modest, presentable, even amusing. Then came the interesting news that, although most people who wanted to meet him had been introduced, he was still being asked about. Also that Mr. Tunney's head was not in the least turned."

"If you analyze Mr. Tunney's conquests," the writer continues, "you will probably find at the bottom that he has an instinctive flair for nice people. He knew plenty of them before he became champion. It was not until after he became champion, however, that Tunney had a chance to meet so many of the kind of people he wanted to meet, with whom he got along. They came to him because he was champion and stayed because they liked him."

Cities Losing Residents

Villages and small towns are again showing increase in population, contrary to popular understanding. As a matter of fact the Institute of Social and Religious Research has found from heretofore unpublished census figures that the rate of city population increase in 1900 to 1920, fell from 84 per cent to 52.1 per cent, while the rural rate was pushed up to 20.7 per cent.

The discrepancy is due to government bookkeeping, according to Robert McCulluch who made a study for the survey. The government automatically changes a town or village to a city when it reaches 2,500 population.

SANITATION
VALUABLE IN RAISING PIGS

It Has Proven More Profitable Than Rearing Them
in Filth.

One hundred and fifty-four Illinois
farmers raised their usual number of
pigs from one-fourth fewer sows by practicing swine sanitation. The recommendations and practices which
these men followed will be explained
by those connected with the swine
sanitation Special over the Baltimore
and Ohio railroad stopping at Orient
June 6, from 8:30 a. m. to 12 m. and
at Mt. Sterling June 6, at 1 p. m.

Farmers following this plan report
fewer losses of little pigs between farrowing and weaning. Runty pigs
are almost entirely eliminated when
these control measures are followed.
Because the pigs are free from internal parasites and are not handicapped by some of the filth born diseases, they gain more rapidly.

Seven weeks were saved in the
time necessary to reach marketable
weight. This saving means more profitable returns when the recommendations are followed.

Ohio farmers who have cooperated
with the university on this project report equally good results. These results have been obtained without
heavy expenditure of money. Changing management plans will do the
work, according to County Agent H.
S. Lewis, who is looking after plans
for the special train.

Mr. Lewis wants all the farmers
who raise hogs to plan on attending
and seeing the demonstrations which
will show why common round worms
play havoc with little pigs. While
the common round worm is the most
troublesome of the internal parasites
infesting swine, other internal para-
sites and their control measures will
be mentioned. Diseases such as bull
nose and necrotic enteritis (chronic scours) are eliminated by following
the practices which control round
worms.

AN EXAMPLE TO OTHERS

The treatment of prisoners in one
South Australian jail is remarkably
humane. A regular visitor inquired
recently regarding an old offender:

"What's wrong with Bill? He seems to have a grouse?"

"No wonder," said one of his mates.

"He threatened the warden with a
shovel today and now they won't let
him go to choir practice."

Real Proof

"That," said Mr. Newrich, pointing
to a painting in his library, "is a magnificent art treasure."

"How do you know? By the artist's
signature?"

"No; by my own signature on the
check I gave the dealer."

ARMED MEN TO PROTECT BANKS

Elaborate Alarm System Is
Being Planned by Bank-
ers of Michigan.

Detroit, Mich.—Goaded into action
by the frequency of bank robberies,
the Michigan Bankers' association has
determined to inaugurate a plan of
arming vigilantes all over the state
with rifles and pistols and training
them in the use of these weapons.
This is the statement of H. M. Brown,
secretary of the Michigan Bankers' association, while discussing the move.

The plan contemplates an armed organization in every county, built
around the sheriff. The vigilantes appointed will be sworn in as regular
deputy sheriffs, but the arms and
equipment will be furnished by the
various county bankers' federations.

A reward of $1,000 will be offered
in every county for the apprehension
of bandits, dead or alive. Some of the counties plan to offer a reward of
$2,500 for a dead bandit and $1,000
if he is taken alive.

Heading up the vigilante movement
for the financiers are Paul J. Ulrich,
president of the Ulrich Savings bank,
Mount Clemens; F. W. Merrick, vice
president of the Pigeon State bank, Lansing, and R. P. Sherwood, president of the Grand Haven State bank,
Grand Haven.

Deputies in Every County.

Under the plan as outlined there
will be deputized from three to fifty vigilantes in every county that has a
bank.

These men will be armed with .45
caliber pistols and high-powered Krag
rifles with a killing power at a mile
and a half. Fast automobiles will be stationed within easy access to each
bank and the vigilantes will be
trained to mobilize quickly, as soon
as the alarm is sounded.

The plan also contemplates a system of silent alarms stationed in various parts of the bank. The wires
leading from the silent alarms will be encased in steel sheathes to prevent
cutting.

These alarms will lead to various
places in the city or town where the vigilantes are stationed. In the event
of a bank attack it is only necessary
to step on a button. The alarm does
not sound inside of the bank and the
robber will not be aware that while
he is in action, vigilantes are mobiliz-
ing on the outside to meet him with a
ball of lead as he emerges.

Secret telephones will also be installed, while a system of widespread
alarm will be worked out with the
local telephone companies.

In the larger cities a paralyzing gas
will be used which can be set off from any point in the bank, completely pa-ralyzing the bandits at the teller's
windows.

Many of the counties are planning
to install sirens emitting a sound different from any factory whistle or fire
alarm, which will be heard for a distance of at least five miles in all directions. Immediately after the robbery
these sirens will begin to sound, warning the country that a bank has been
robbed and that the bandits are escaping over the highways. This is done in conjunction with that part of
the plan that enlists the help of the farmers all over the county.

The vigilante plan that is being
launched by the Michigan Bankers' association is the same in most respects
as the one under which the Indiana
bankers have been working for the last year and a half. During that time
the Indiana Bankers' association has
seen its bank attacks reduced 84 per cent and its bank losses 79 per cent,
according to H. M. Brown.

Plan of Army Officer.

Joseph Rylands, former army officer, who inaugurated the plan in Indiana, has been secured by the Michigan Bankers' association to initiate
the plan in Michigan.

When the plan is functioning correctly, according to Chairman Ulrich
of the state protective committee, all
the law enforcing officers in the state
will be co-ordinating with a watchful
citizenry that has been aroused to action by the increasing boldness of the
criminals. It is expected, Mr. Ulrich said, that at least 1,000 armed vigilantes will be sworn in during the next four months.

One feature of the plan which of necessity could not be divulged, Mr.
Sherwood said, is a series of "death
traps" that will be arranged in each
banking community. Another feature
is a system of road blockade that will
insure the appearance of 150 to 300
men on all highways within 15 minutes after a bank is attacked.

"We are dead in earnest about
this vigilante plan," Mr. Sherwood
stated. "It appears that nothing except the use of force will put an end
to the depredations of these potential
murderers. Very well, if that is necessary to curb them, we will be glad to
see that they get it."

Black Crows Stained

Yellow by Tree Spray

Wenatchee, Wash.—Black crows have turned yellow; horses, cows and farm poultry wear saffron coats these

Any objects coming in contact with the wet spray from the force pumps immediately adopt a sticky coloring, and curious birds coming through the orchards go back to the forest strangely camouflaged.

Something New in Fowls

A new type of fowl is being raised
in Alberta to supplant the high-priced
holiday turkey. A cross between a turkey and a chicken, the "turken" resembles the turkey in head and body,
but in size, comb and wattles it is
more like the chicken.

Gloria—Then you'd better get a pair

Take That, Female!

Another prominent woman says the more she sees of men the more she thinks of dogs, but there's just a little something wrong with a woman who cannot get along with men. As a rule the trouble is that she demands of men the devotion and the obedience
of dogs.—Louisville Times.

FATHER AND 5
SONS IN PRISON

Moonshine and Tennessee
Mountain Life Blamed
for Downfall

Cincinnati, Ohio.—Five of his sons in felon's cells, the eldest condemned to a living death—life sentence, without hope of pardon, for the cold blooded murder of a young woman—the sixth, barely fifteen, snatched from him by the law in the hope that change of environment may eradicate the criminal tendencies that apparently are inherent, Frank Anglin, fifty-three, liquor-soaked product of the Tennessee hills, is in the county jail meditating on an ill-spent life.

Like a tale from the Arabian Nights reads the story of the sons, whose criminal machinations have run the gamut from common larceny to automobile theft, burglary, arson, assault, highway robbery and, finally, murder. It was the brutal slaying of Shirley Gardon, referred to as the "blaxen-haired flapper," a young and estranged wife, whose life was snuffed out by a bullet from behind as she indulged in a petting party with Peter Brown, on a lonely road, which bare the details of many roadside robberies and other crimes in which three Anglin brothers confessed participation, as well as the checked page of a lifetime of more or less serious crimes in which the male members of the family revelled.

Ill-Fitted to Face World.

Psychologists will contend, and not without substantial basis, that the hemmed-in life in the mountain valleys that precluded schooling and a healthy environment sounds the keynote. Certain it is the Anglin family emerged from their cabin in the hills, ill-fated to face the pitfalls of the outer world and were easy prey to the glib-tongued criminals infesting the city.

It was easy for Bill Anglin, unsophisticated mountain lad of seventeen, when the family migrated to Cincinnati 12 years ago, to have his head turned by the easy manner in which, under the tutelage of the criminals with whom he had cast his lot, he "stripped" an automobile—his first job. The accessories and tires did not bring much return financially, but to the mind of the mountain youth, to whom a dollar was almost a fortune, it was big money. And getting it was so easy.

Again and again the gang essayed similar jobs successfully, until the small return began to pall on Anglin. Big, raw-boned mountaineer, with muscles hardened by hardship, he visioned real money in a bigger field, leaving the auto jobs to the pickers.

It was easy to induce his brother John, two years his junior, to join him in leadership of what became known to the underworld as the Anglin gang, the existence of which, strange to say, was unknown to the authorities until a keen-eyed patrolman, following a slender clue, brought about the arrest of one of the gang, which proved the opening wedge in tearing apart the well-constructed alibis and revealed the gruesome tale of theft, assault and murder.

Brothers Make Confessions.

With the elder Anglin, now twenty-nine, a confessed murderer awaiting only a jury to decide whether death or life without hope of pardon should be the penalty exacted; for his brothers John and George, the latter only sixteen years old, confessed participants with Bill, and Cecil Bennett and Gordon Lawrence, other members of the gang in jail pending trial, the wheels of justice began to move swiftly.

One by one the remaining Anglins were disposed of. Franklin, twenty, going to Atlanta for automobile stealing; Ted, seventeen, to Mansfield reformatory for a similar crime, the father in jail on a drunkenness and neglect charge, and Ernest, the baby and the lone male Anglin as yet apparently unstained by crime, ordered to the children's home by the court in the hope of saving him. Followed the quick conviction of Bill with a life sentence with pardon barred: life for John Anglin and Bennett, and the reformatory and later the penitentiary for George Anglin and Lawrence, minors.

Through the maze of crime and intrigue surrounding the Anglins there stalks the vision of two sisters, who in reality are the chief sufferers as the result of paternal neglect and illiteracy of the mountains that sent their brothers into the world potential criminals. The Anglin sisters took the road directly opposite to that selected by their brothers and today are married happily.

AMUSEMENTS

When Douglas McLean turned weather prophet and said, "Let It Rain," he really meant, "Let 'em Laugh!" Because whether his current Paramount release which arrived at the Met theater last night, had that effect. An overflow audience was kept in ecstasies of joy for seventy snappy minutes.

"Let It Rain" presents MacLean as a marine who awakes from a lethargy only after meeting "the one girl." Then, seeing an officer gain her attention, he determines to win his chevrons. How he does this by capturing a troop of mail thieves and saving the government's honor, provides the comedy with a stroy plot and plenty of laughs.

If you don't believe it, imagine what happens when Doug discovers himself aboard a mail train with two crooks. First, they get the upper hand; then he does; finally he ties one of them up in a mail sack and the prisoner starts shooting thru the canvas. Then, to make things even funnier, a third bandit, riding the brake rods, decides to cut the coach loose. And, the whole gang is marooned—on a runaway train which continues speeding down steep mountain grades.

Shirley Mason is Doug's bit of sun shine in "Let It Rain." Eddie Cline directed. See the picture. It won't wet your feet, is guaranteed to dry the tears and will positively deliver at least one smile per second!

Good-Natured Men

Everybody can tell a good-natured man by looking into his face. So it is that the good-natured ones of the country are those who are most imposed upon, but as they bear it cheerfully, thereby clinching their claim to good nature, nobody, not even the good-natured ones, need complain.—Exchange.

MISSOURI MULE FAVORED FOR THRILLS

For those who crave excitement and thrill we would recommend a trip to Oaks park, Portland, Ore., there to experience a ride on the Missouri mule (pictured above). The Missouri mule to all appearance looks like a well-mannered flivver, but looks are deceiving—at least in this case—for the flivver is possessed of diabolic tendencies—and when in use may buck, rear and stall like a mule.

Many Motorists Fail to See Why Frequent Change of Oil Is Vital.

In spite of the fact that manufacturers, garage men and dealers constantly stress the importance of frequent oil changes in engine lubrication, many motorists fail to see why this changing is so vital.

The introduction of improved lubrication systems, oil filters and devices to lessen oil dilution in the crankcase has done much to cut down lubrication troubles, but the subject of oil changing still demands the careful attention of the motorist.

What Happens to Unchanged Oil.

What happens when you fail to change oil? In the first place, heat produces a chemical change in oil which causes it to lose its lubricating qualities. Gasoline may become mixed with the oil, lowering its efficiency. When there is no oil filter, particles of metal from the wearing surfaces and a certain amount of dirt and rust which accumulate in the crankcase oil may be forced to the engine operating parts. Unless all the oil is drained out of the crankcase, foreign matter will remain there. It is not sufficient to add only enough oil to keep the proper level.

A new engine requires more frequent oil changes than an engine which is "broken in," because new bearing surfaces throw off a greater number of metal particles. After the first 500 miles of driving, it is advisable to change the oil in the engine. Repeat this operation every 2,500 miles in warm weather, and every 1,000 miles in cold weather.

What Kind of Oil to Use.

Fortunately for the motorist, oil service is today so highly developed that it is possible to get disinterested advice from filling-station service men, oil dealers and garage men as to the best type of oil to use for your engine. In addition to this, manufacturers issue booklets of instruction with new cars, telling just what sort of oil to use for best results.

Remember that, at speeds of 40 miles an hour or greater, oil consumption by the motor is considerably higher than at lower speeds. With ordinary driving, the motor may consume one quart of oil every 125 miles of travel, but this amount becomes greater as speed increases.

Best Time to Overhaul Auto and Refinish Body

Fastidious car owners who want to begin the spring months with an automobile that is mechanically perfect and spick-and-span in appearance should take advantage of the present season to have their cars overhauled and refinished.

Repair and refinishing establishments are less rushed at this season than at any other time of year. Cars put up for either or both types of work now will be given attention that cannot be commanded when the demand for speed becomes great.

At no other time can an owner so well afford to be without his car.

Lining Up Front Wheels

Many car owners fail to make headway when lining up the front wheels because they fail to true up the wheels and tires separately. The front wheels may toe in the proper amount, but the rims may not run true, thus throwing the tires out of line. This can be determined by revolving the wheels separately and noting how true they turn. Any variation may be due to the wheels being too loose on the axles or to the rims being screwed to the wheels unevenly.

Motorcycle Coupe Popular in Paris

The inside drive motorcycle coupe is on the streets of Paris.

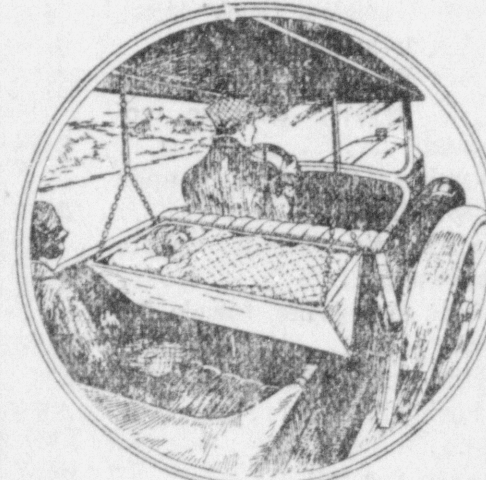

It looks like a normal motorcycle with a one-man body, top, windshield, curtains and all, placed well forward so the steering can be done comfortably with the long handle-bars.

A small radiator in front, over the steering wheel, makes the vehicle look like a small automobile.

The motor is under the body with the starting crank at the rear. A small third wheel to the right rear, supports the car at rest.

Baby Carrier for Auto Safe and Comfortable

When riding in the rear seat of a car it is quite difficult to hold a baby comfortably, but by providing a carrier the trouble will be eliminated. The carrier shown in the drawing consists of a canvas bag, the open top of which is held rigid by a wood or metal frame. Lengths of brass or galvanized chain and two coil springs, to serve as shock absorbers, are attached as indicated, and the baby will be safe and comfortable. To prevent the crib from lurching it should be fastened to the back of the front seat near the bottom by means of a short coil spring.—Carlton Groat, The Dalles, Ore., in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Numbering Gear Shift to Help in Handling Lever

In teaching his wife to drive a motorist found that she was having great difficulty in remembering the several gear-shift positions, and as a result was slowing up her shifting considerably, due to having to stop to think which lever position was which. He hit upon the idea of employing some small metal numbers, such as might be used for small signs and the like. Procuring a "1," "2," "3" and an "R," he nailed them to the footboard in proper position to indicate the way the lever had to be shifted to effect any given speed change. The idea worked to advantage, and the beginner had only to glance down at the numbers to know exactly which way to carry the lever, eliminating all uncertainty.

AUTOMOBILE NOTES

See that the generator charges sufficient amperage at all times to avoid battery damage.

Motorists have paid liberally and without complaint for good roads. The "detour" still persists.

Keep the foot flat on the floor board, unless actually shifting gears or slowing quickly to a stop.

Blow your auto horn at the railroad crossing so that the limited train will know you're around and won't run the risk of being knocked from the right-of-way.

Why
Firestone
GUM-DIPPED TIRES
Wear Longer

WE recently were given the tremendous advantage of having the mammoth Firestone factories brought to us. In Tire Educational Meetings we were shown, by means of motion pictures, charts, tire samples and complete engineering data, the details of Firestone tire design and construction—and how Firestone and Oldfield tires and tubes are made in the world's most efficient and economical rubber factories.

Firestone pioneered the original low-pressure tire and made it practical by Gum-Dipping. The motion pictures showed us how the cords of the carcass are dipped in a rubber solution, thoroughly saturating and insulating every fiber of every cord with rubber. Simple demonstrations and tests illustrated the great advantage of this process, which supplies the extra strength to withstand the extra flexing strains of low-pressure construction—one of the reasons why Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires are establishing such unheard-of mileage records.

We learned why the Firestone Balloon Tread gives extra safety, comfort and long wear. We were shown why Firestone, from the very beginning, designed and continue to use the round Balloon Tread, minimizing "shoulder breaks", so destructive to tires. Excess rubber at the edges of a Balloon Tread is wasted—actually detrimental to tire mileage. In the Firestone Tread the small units and sharp projections are scientifically placed to permit easy flexing, resulting in extraordinary riding comfort.

Come in and let us put a set of these Gum-Dipped Tires on your car—you can forget about tire trouble. Quality is higher than ever before—prices are lowest in history. Buy now!

Nell and Her Own Revolution

By H. IRVING KING

LAS ANIMAS looked beautiful from the sea and smelled horribly from the shore. Back of it rose the majestic Andes, snow-crowned against the deep blue sky, and in front of it a roadstead swung glittering in the sun. On a hill above the town stood the administration building of the American company that operated the mines back in the mountains and the narrow-gauge railroad connecting them with Las Animas' only dock. In locating the administration building the idea of a defensive position had not been lost sight of; for in Las Animas one never can tell what will happen.

Just now the administration building was housing guests—Mr. George K. Lambton, president of the company, his stately wife, Maria, and his entirely charming daughter, Nellie. Two reasons had brought the party to this remote place—Mr. Lambton's desire to inspect the property of the company and Mrs. Lambton's desire to get Nellie away from the vicinity of Lieut. Vincent Granger, U. S. N., stationed at the Brooklyn navy yard. Vincent had nothing but his pay; Carroll Whitworth was worth a million at least.

Mr. Lambton had been two weeks in Las Animas when he began to get nervous. There was a rebellion brewing, old Pancho, the major demo of the administration building, told him so; as, also, did Pepe, one of the leading natives up at the mines. He could see signs of it everywhere and here he was with his wife and daughter on his hands and all this American property—and not an American gunboat nearer than San Pedro, one hundred and fifty miles up the coast! It was in vain that Jenkins, the company's superintendent, assured him: "Old Sanchez has got the lid on tight. There'll be no ructions as long as El Presidente has ammunition for firing squads and church walls are handy." Lambton knew better. Mrs. Lambton demanded that her husband cable to Washington and have a gunboat sent to Las Animas. Finally he did so and the Gull was ordered down from San Pedro.

The following morning Jenkins and the other "gringo" employees of the administration building started off early for the mines, leaving the Lambtons alone with old Pancho and a few native clerks and servants. "The Gull ought to be here by noon," said Jenkins; "that will make you feel safer, though I assure you there is not the slightest cause for your alarm." Noon came but no gunboat.

After the siesta hour, however, all their fears awoke. Mrs. Lambton began to grow hysterical. For there was an unwonted agitation going on in the town; a hurrying to and fro, a loud calling of voices, a flaunting of banners and the sounds of martial music. Lambton called old Pancho: "What was it?"

"The revolution," said Pancho and disappeared.

"Now, father," said Nellie, "I guess you will acknowledge that the United States navy is of some use after all. If Vincent were only here!"

"I wish to heaven he was," said Lambton, "or any other officer. The sight of a naval uniform just now would be worth all I have in the world. There, look, see that smoke off there? There comes the gunboat."

A little later there strode into the great living room of the administration building a young officer in uniform of white and gold who saluted Lambton and said: "I was ordered down from San Pedro to report to the president of the American Mining company here for the protection of lives and property of Americans. A slight accident to our machinery delayed our arrival a few hours."

"You have saved our lives, Lieutenant Granger," said Lambton; "I can't thank you enough."

"What would have become of us if you hadn't come," cried Mrs. Lambton. "Nellie, thank our deliverer. Give him your hand."

"For keeps?" inquired Vincent with a sly smile.

"Oh yes, anything you like—I withdraw my opposition. Don't you, George?" babbled Mrs. Lambton.

"Yes, yes; certainly," replied Lambton. "We'd all be dead if he had not arrived."

Just then in came, laughing and talking, Jenkins and the rest returned from the mines. "So the Gull got here, has it?" said Jenkins. "Glad to see you, lieutenant. Your presence will add to the comfort of our esteemed chief."

"How is the revolution going?" asked Lambton of Jenkins.

"Revolution?" was the reply.

"What revolution?"

"Don't you hear it down in the town?" said Lambton.

"Oh," laughed Jenkins, "that is just Las Animas celebrating its patron saint's day—a fiesta."

"How did you manage it?" asked Vincent of Nellie when, at last, they were alone together in a corner of the veranda.

"Oh, when you wrote that you had been ordered to the Gull, and I knew that the Gull was at San Pedro, I got up a little revolution of my own to bring you down here. You will have to help me pay off my army, though. Pancho and Pepe are the most avaricious old scoundrels I ever met. I had to give them every cent of my last month's allowance to join my forces and I still owe 'em."

WHO HAS THE RUNTIEST PIG IN THE COUNTY

Stanley Lewis, County Agent
Farm Bureau, Wants
the Speciman

County Agent H. S. Lewis is looking for the runtiest pig in Packaway county. The pig will be killed and a post mortem examination made by Dr. H. B. Reffensperger, of the United States department of agriculture as the concluding feature of the program when the Baltimore and Ohio Swine Sanitation Special comes to Orient June 6 at 8:30-12 M., and at Mt. Sterling June 6 at 1-5 P. M.

Mr. Lewis explains that the name of the owner of the prize runt will not be made public. If the pig has had an opportunity to obtain feed and has not thrived, his trouble is very apt to be due to internal parasites. An examination of the internal organs of the pig will show the reason for the handicap. More runts are due to internal parasites than to any other one factor. The worm control measures which were worked out by Dr. Reffensperger and his associates are the greatest factor in developing a more profitable hog business since the discovery of hog cholera serum.

The following program is announced for the train. As the farmers arrive they will be asked to register so that the county agent may learn the names of the farmers who are responsible for producing Pickaway county's hog crop.

O. K. Quivey, of Baltimore, general agricultural agent for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad will discuss The Railroad's Interest in Agriculture. Paul Gerlaugh of Ohio State university will talk on Protein Supplements and Mineral Feeds. Dr. Reffensperger will tell the life cycle of the round worm and the practices to be followed in controlling these worms when he discusses Swine Sanitation.

The exhibit cars will be open and someone will be there to explain the exhibits between 8:30 and 12 A. M. and 1:30 to 5 P. M.

"The Store that Treats You Right."

COLWELL IS WITH YOU FROM BATH TUB TO BALL ROOM.

We not only have the outer clothes for stepping out in society in—but the intimate underwear for stepping out of the bath into.

And we don't mean the underwear we think is right—but the sort you have adopted as best for you.

Snowy white—cool—and we'll deliver a fit instead of a size.
